1963. Before Vegas Went Corporate.

There was a time when deals were made at small tables. When the bar mattered more than the DJ. When the room was thick with smoke and nobody took photos.

1963 Club is a return to that era.

Inspired by the golden age of Las Vegas and the intimacy of the world's great private clubs, it exists for those who prefer velvet over volume and presence over performance.

It Begins Upstairs.

Before the room below, there is the table above. A steakhouse in the El Cortez tradition — prime cuts, candlelight, unhurried service. The kind of dinner where the check is never mentioned and the wine keeps arriving.

The steakhouse is led by Chef David Robbins — Hawaiian-born, globally trained, with a palate shaped by years across Peru, Polynesia, and the great steakhouse traditions of the American West.

The dinner is the invitation. The descent is the reward.

The Descent

---

Dinner upstairs.

A final pour of wine.

Then the question: "Shall we go downstairs?"

A private staircase leads to a low-lit foyer.

Membership verified.

A solid door opens.

The room reveals itself in layers —
never all at once.

Designed for Spending Time — and Money.

4,000 square feet of layered intimacy.

The Bar

An oval bar wrapped in leather and brass. Backlit shelves of rare Scotch, bourbon, and vintage wine. Tableside martini service.

The Pool Room

One tournament-grade table. Deep leather seating. Cigars permitted. The kind of game that lasts all night.

The Humidor

Climate-controlled. Curated global selection. Member lockers available. A place to sit, smoke, and say nothing for a while.

The Baccarat Salon

A statement table at the center of the room. A private high-limit salon just beyond. Reservations accepted.

Passed Apps

Chef Robbins' kitchen sends down wagyu sliders, chilled shellfish, steak tartare, truffle fries. Nothing plated, everything passed.

No dance floor. No DJ. No velvet rope.

The Cellar & The Cabinet

The program is classic, not clever.

Scotch & Whisky

Macallan 25, Dalmore Cigar Malt, closed-distillery bottlings. Poured two fingers at a time.

Bourbon

Pappy Van Winkle, George T. Stagg, allocated pours. Ask the bartender what just arrived.

Wine

First-growth Bordeaux. Elite Napa Cabernets. Burgundy by the bottle. Large-format magnums.

Cocktails

Martini. Manhattan. Negroni. Vesper. Old Fashioned. Five drinks, executed precisely.

The bartender remembers your drink. The second one arrives without asking.

Gaming, Without the Floor.

1963 Club is not a public casino. It is a private gaming salon designed for discretion and elevated play.

Private reservations available. No crowds. No chaos. Just felt, chips, and silence when it matters.

Membership Is Not Purchased. It Is Considered.

1963 Club operates under a simple code:

Discretion.

Respect.

No photography.

Dress expectations enforced.

Referral required.

Members may host guests.

The room exists for those who understand it.
